Consolidation of seven county administrations into one district with headquarters at Hope, was announced Wednesday by J. R. Henry, district administrator of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration (FERA). Mr. Henry was Hempstead county administrator before the county organizations were abolished all over the state and nation to reduce overhead expense.

Collegiate Youth More Dull Than Fast, Since Panic

Wisconsin Editor Finds Young People of Today Grimly Earnest

SLAPS AT ELDERS

More Excess Drinking Among Alumni Than the Undergraduates

Here's a college student editor looking at youth—in the fifth of six articles representing a nationwide survey of the VTCD young generation, its codes, its plans for the future.

By ALDRIC REVELL (Former Contributing Editor, The Daily Cardinal, University of Wisconsin) (Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

MADISON, Wis.—What has become of the college man of the supplements, enveloped in a racoon coat, flask on hip, golf clubs in one hand, co-ed in the other, speeding along in an expensive car—drunkener than a grouch. This 1929 caricature is familiar to all. It is possible that in four short years it has vanished.

The depression, post-prohibition college man, to put it bluntly, is a dull fellow. He combines with a youthful hopefulness a lack of imagination and a staggering amount of intellectual facility. Accepting the 1929 caricature at face value, in comparison this present group of college students drinks less, "pats" less and thinks less.

At a university such as Wisconsin, whose liberal tradition has attracted students from all over the world, whose citizens are as conservative as any chamber of commerce, and whose environment is so conducive to pleasure, there are naturally many types.

On the periphery are the scholars who work their way through school, intent solely upon an education. In the inner circle are the hangers-on from 1929, play-boys who still have money and who prefer Bacchus to books. At the core, and comprising the great majority of students, is the future backbone of the middle West, upright, honest, and dull men and women, from farm, village and city.

Not Smart to Drink
What has happened to these students? Do they still drink as much as before? Alas, they speak they do not. More students drink here than before, but less indulge in hard liquor. For money is scarce, and it is no longer considered smart to drink.

What about the wild fraternity parties that used to be so prevalent among the students? A look at the financial records of most of the houses around the campus will indicate the answer. No money, no drink, and again, the present crop of college men and women are so young that the bliss of a good, hard drink is either unknown or unattractive. Parents still consider drinking a sign of 3.2 and sign of Bacchic irresponsibility but they get used to lipstick and they'll get used to snobs before the next war.

Is this college town, then, on a football weekend, a model of propriety? Far from it. This college town on a football weekend is not unfamiliar with the breath of whiskey fumes. But without a doubt the most boisterous drunks and the most obnoxious playboys are John Smith '35, Tom Jones '37, Harry Brown '22 and their immediate cohorts. The students have a right to smile at this paradoxical behavior of the older generation.

To Pet, or Not to Pet
But surely, Mrs. Weisendok from Sun Prairie will hasten to interpolate, the boys and girls of today "pet" outrageously? That will depend upon what the lady means by "pet." Since the older generation invented the phrase they should be made to define it instead of expecting the younger generation to illustrate it. The average college man and woman would frown on this loggining of a natural gesture. What if cars are parked along the most beautiful sections of the lake? What if couples wander hand in hand along the shaded walks? Did a Lacedaemonian youth behave differently? Were all Egyptians mun-

Budget Proposal Laid Before Council

Adoption Is Urged by Public Affairs Board to Council

Copies Placed With Committee Chairman for Study and Action

FORBID WALKATHON

Council Prohibits Dance Marathons—to License All Peddlers

Budgeting of city expenditures to compel them to stay within the municipal revenues during the new fiscal year, was a proposal laid before the Hope city council Tuesday night. The budget, prepared by the city's certified public accountants who have just completed the annual municipal audits, was read and discussed by the aldermen, and referred to the chairman of the various committees for close study before a vote is taken on its adoption at a later meeting.

The board of public affairs has recommended that it be adopted.

The budget, as proposed, appears in the adjoining column on this page of today's Star.

2 Ordinances Passed
The council approved two ordinances. One forbids the staging of walkathons and dance marathons in this city. The other ordinance levies a peddler's license tax on any person soliciting trade from door-to-door in Hope.

R. B. Stanford, federal relief works engineer, appeared before the council with a proposal to improve Fair Park roadways, and a committee was named to go over the matter with him.

A request by Mrs. M. H. Penny to open a street leading to Paisley grade school was referred to the street committee.

Hope Basket company asks for construction of sidewalks leading to its plant, for the benefit of employees, and this was referred to the sidewalks committee.

To Replant Cemetery
The council heard a petition for the replanting of the cemetery, and decided that this should be done, with the possibility of federal work relief co-operation.

A request by Dr. G. E. Cannon for the donation of water and lights to Josephine hospital by the municipal plant was heard, and action was deferred until a later meeting.

A request by D. M. Finley for a donation of $15 per month covering gasoline and oil used by his automobile in federal sanitary work in the city was rejected on recommendation of the committee.

Dr. Don Smith, city physician, reported that he had inspected all places in the city handling food, and had examined clerks and other food-handlers for tuberculosis.

Drouth, Ended in West, Turns East

New England Feels Pinch of Terror, Rains Fall in West

By the Associated Press
The drouth reached into Maine Wednesday as rains put an end to it in the middle America wheat and corn belts.

Agriculturists said the rains were too late to save the wheat crop in Northwestern states, but would probably prevent loss of other crops.

At Washington, President Roosevelt withheld his drouth message to congress, waiting to learn what benefits the rains have had.

In Ohio, a federal crop expert said that alk of irreparable damage to crops by the drouth was "hysteria," and that "a shower a week" would bring many crops through in fair shape.

To New England
CHICAGO—(AP)—New dry spots appeared on the nation's drouth map Wednesday and rains brought some relief to other hard hit sections.

Spreading eastward, the dry area included states in New England, with crops in Maine threatened by a rainless spell already two weeks old.

Rains scattered dry and dusty fields in many sections of the middle west, but came too late, agriculture department officials said, to be of benefit to wheat.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Roosevelt Ready to Spring Champion of All His Vote Winning Lures ... A Kite for Mr. Snell From a Fee ... Silk Stockings Paid Off in Minneapolis ... Great "Depravity" of Pickard Bared.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Hard times may come knocking at the New Deal door this summer.

Business won't be brisk and labor troubles are sure. Criticisms of the recovery program will be coming faster and thicker as election campaigns warm up. And you may get to thinking that the New Deal is endangered by the elections.

But write it in your memory book, regardless of your slant on administration programs, that Roosevelt is still the peer among all our political medicine men.

His hole ace is as good as visible to eager politicians in both parties. Roosevelt is going to propose a social legislation program which will hold out the promise of economic security to everyone, from childhood to the grave.

It will include unemployment insurance, health insurance, old age and widow pensions, perhaps legislation for shorter hours, and more jobs along with it.

If that program, presented as only Roosevelt can present it to the country, isn't the greatest vote-getter ever sold into a campaign, the politicians will swing their pants for compass.

After the last few years, at least 90 per cent of people think in terms of security.

Insiders on Capitol Hill know Roosevelt won't wait until Congress meets in January to reveal his plans. He is the issue in this election and has no reason to miss a trick by keeping quiet.

And don't be surprised at a proposal to create a new cabinet berth, occupied by Secretary of Public Welfare Harry Hopkins. This may not have been decided yet. But it's in the cards.

A Kiss for Mr. Snell
When white-haired political war horses start throwing kisses at each other from opposite sides of the aisle, it doesn't mean anything. But there are instances, about as rare as authentic cases of men who have bitten dogs.

To the large surprise of Democratic Leader Joe Byrns, Minority Leader Bert Snell on a bill which otherwise would have taken a day of useless time.

It was then that gaunt, bushy-browed, 64-year-old Byrns raised a bony hand to his lips and threw Snell a tender kiss.

Old Grudge Paid Off
Federal agencies concerned with labor or industry had more than the obvious reasons for interest in labor's victory in the truckmen's strike in Minneapolis.

The trucking industry, they were the backbone of the anti-union element and is compared with the steel industry and its similar position in the national industrial field. Further, the strikers weren't taking any orders from their superior A. F. of L. officials here.

Senator Wagner of the National Labor Board telephoned President Dan Tobin of the Teamsters' Union during the height of the street fighting and asked him what he could do to stop it. Tobin had to reply that he couldn't do a thing. The truckmen had organized themselves and were making their own battle.

Meanwhile, the White House itself was receiving frantic reports from certain socially prominent persons who were in close touch. The burden of them was that the "best families" of Minneapolis were being beaten up and that federal troops should be sent to save them.

The story behind that is that most of the hundred or more special policemen whom strikers put in hospitals were employers or well-to-do young men banded together in a Citizens' Alliance.

This group, with badges and clubs, had been doing strike duty for years and had cracked many heads. Nursing years of hatred, other union members joined the truckmen in beating them up. No regular policemen or firemen were hurt.

Another unusual strike factor noted here was Governor Olson's order that national guardsmen keep trucks off the street. That amounted to putting them on the picket line!

His "Depravity" Is Bared
Some Democratic congressmen are trying to oust Edward T. Pickard, head of the cotton textile division in the Department of Commerce, on the ground that he is a Republican.

The evidence thus far introduced

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Burdening a Child Beyond His Mental Capacity Interferes With Learning

Dr. Douglas A. Thom, director of the habit clinics of Boston and director also of Mental Hygiene in the Department of Mental Diseases of Massachusetts, in his new book, "Guiding the Adolescent," refers among other things to "educational pitfalls."

The words caught my eye at once. "Educational Pitfalls."

Contrary to what I had expected, Dr. Thom explains that these are various kinds of failure in the child to cope with the high order study expected of him.

I had in mind the conflicts arising from trying to fit the newer and broader vision in education today to narrower home tradition. Newer ideas of religion, of government and so on, which I do think cause much perplexity—learning one way of looking at things at home, and another at school. Who is right, the child wants to know.

But Dr. Thom bears harder on the other trouble, the fact that many children who do well in lower grade work find themselves up against a real impasse in high school, while parents attribute this failure to laziness or indifference.

Reasons for Failure
To go over some of the pertinent points, he explains the various reasons of failure.

First, some children are physically incapable of applying themselves to school work more than others can concentrate on lessons for ten or even twelve hours a day without fatigue. I am not quoting directly, but paraphrasing his ideas.

Second, very many children find themselves pushed along, and when they enter high school have no real preparation for meeting their tasks. I think this is very important.

Only in these two little foundations for the sudden jump into scholastic work, but the habit of concentration has never been acquired.

The third point I have left until last because I believe it to be the most important—mental immaturity. Dr. Thom stresses the point.

Authorities on mental calibre agree that comparatively few adults have really adult minds, meaning that perfect development up to the chosen unit of standard is not always reached. It would take a long list of tables to explain this, but suffice it to say that each one of us has our "mental age."

Some even go beyond accepted standard, but many stay below. This does not mean that these latter are morose or odd or abnormal in any way. Often the reverse. Intelligence is a matter of width rather than height and the genius in one line may be stupid in another.

Show Mental Growth
Some children, too, delay mental completion until they are older. This is why I like the idea of a year or two of work before college. Mental immaturity is no equipment for higher study.

At this time of year parents may do well to consider some of these things. If a boy or girl has had a struggle it seems to be the wiser course to figure out the trouble and correct it. Perhaps there is work he or she has missed, work that will be necessary before they can go on successfully. It can be obtained in vacation. Or there is no shame in reaking the last year's work altogether. Almost anything is better than another "pitfall."

They may need only time. If possible choose subject suited to the type of mentality. No use wasting time on those subjects beyond any hope of being mastered. It does pay to swap horses sometimes in the middle of the stream.

against Pickard is the fact that he once persuaded Mrs. Hoover to wear a cotton dress as a publicity stunt for a use-more-cotton campaign.

Rouge With Orange Lights Best for Sustained Skins

Rouge is one cosmetic that the average woman can't do without, particularly one a summer vacation. The "pale" look is all right with dark street clothes if you're the type that looks interestingly pale.

Of course, it may be that vacation ports will put plenty of natural color into your cheeks. And fortunate you are if that happens. However, it's more than likely that the natural color will disappear half an hour after the game of tennis is finished, and when it does, remember that rouge is the next best thing—providing it has been chosen carefully and according to the color of your own cheeks after vigorous exercise.

Suntanned skin calls for a rouge with orange lights in it. Look at your own high color under your suntanned skin. It's quite different from the color that you had before you got the coat of tan, isn't it? And, naturally, the rouge which flattered your skin in the winter will do nothing for you now. However, the same rules for putting it on smoothly still apply.

Brush your forefinger across a bit of cleansing cream before you dip it in the cream rouge. Then smooth the rouge on your cheeks, being careful not to leave rough, unblended edges.

NEXT: More about summer rouge.

Fragments of diamonds are frequent ly used for the points in diamond drills; but at present "black diamond" an impure, but very hard form of carbon is used for the purpose.

The Price-Fixer

WASHINGTON—(P)—The Federal Trade Commission Sunday formally charged three leading cottonseed crushers' associations with conspiracy to fix and depress prices and block competition.

The associations, said to crush 80 per cent of the cottonseed in the South, are the National Cottonseed Products association, the Texas Cottonseed Crushers' association and the Oklahoma Cottonseed Crushers' association.

After asserting that cottonseed is the only crop in many sections from which the small cotton farmer receives any cash return since the cotton crop itself is usually pledged in advance to pay debts, the commission charged that:

"By means of the agreements, understandings, policies and co-operative practices, respondents have taken away from farmers and growers of cottonseed and from independent dealers in seed and meal the normal advantages of free competition which formerly existed and would otherwise exist between and among respondent mills and milling companies in the purchase of cottonseed and of cottonseed meal."

"Respondents thereby compelled unorganized farmers and dealers to sell seed and buy meal at prices and on terms determined collectively and collusively by respondents and artificially depressed the price obtained for seed by said farmers and dealers below the level obtainable had there been no such determination."

The associations were given until July 6 to file answers with the commission and to show cause why the commission should not issue an order requiring them to cease and desist from the alleged illegal practices.

The specific method of price fixing attacked by the commission were based on the promoting and holding of frequent meetings and conferences among the associations, and the systematic exchange of information concerning prices among themselves.

The commission said that the Texas and Oklahoma associations as well as associations not specifically charged all affiliated with the national association, had devised a method whereby prices were fixed automatically.

This device consisted of posting on the Dallas Cotton Exchange, Houston Merchants Exchange, New Orleans Cotton Exchange and Little Rock Cotton Exchange carlot prices which the terminal mills or association representatives decided "would provide a satisfactory profit to the mills after deducting from the value of the product from a ton of seed, the cost of crushing and of transportation."

The commission alleged that no transactions took place on these exchanges as a foundation for the prices so posted and the associations from time to time withheld and suppressed the posting or publication of prices actually being paid which were higher than they thought should be paid.

Scopes Case Attorney Seeking Nomination for U. S. Senate

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(P)—The final day for candidates of Tennessee state and congressional offices to run in the Democratic and Republican primaries of August 2 found a large field entered. Midnight Sunday night was the deadline for qualification.

A last minute entry was Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville lawyer, who qualified as a Democratic candidate for both the long and the short term senatorial nominations.

Dr. Neal, who was chief lawyer for John T. Scopes in the celebrated "Monkey Trial" in Dayton in 1925, has sought several times to go to the Senate. He was a candidate before the legislature of 1924 and 1925, and entered the Senate race in 1926. He was defeated by Senator Robert L. Taylor, who died in 1912. He ran for the Democratic senatorial nomination in the primaries of 1928 and 1930. Neal opposed Austin Peay for the gubernatorial nomination in 1924.

If he elects to contest for the long term nomination, he will be opposed by Senator K. D. McKellar, who defeated him and Finis Garrett in the 1928 primary.

Senator Nathan L. Backman and Representative Gordon Browning of the Seventh district are candidates, along with Neal, for the Democratic senatorial nomination to serve the two years remaining of the term for which Secretary of State Cordell Hull was elected in 1930. When Hull resigned from the Senate Governor McCallister appointed Backman to the vacancy.

Gene Ahern was born in Chicago in 1895. After attending grammar-school, he went to work at odd jobs and studied at night at the Chicago Art Institute. One of his jobs was in a Chicago meat market. That was in 1912. He also worked for a ventriloquist.

Mr. Ahern—or Gene as almost everybody calls him—was a good enough worker, but he preferred cartoons to meat cutting. There was plenty of brown paper to practice on. His first job as an artist was in a fashion art department where, reports have it, he did not set the world on fire. However, he was getting a lot of practice.

In 1914, he became a cartoonist with the NEA service. As time wore on he says, "I went from worse to worse until I sank so low I was doing comics." Eventually he made a hit with the characters of "Our Boarding House," principally Major Hoople, who didn't exist when the comic first appeared. However, the Major grew in size, conceit, laziness, and unbounded imagination—and now dominates the scene.

About him his creator says, "To me the Major is a very real person. There are thousands of Major Hooples in the world, and I think the world is better off because of them. He hurts nobody and least of all himself. He leads a delightful life—no work or worry. Ten dollars is a fortune to him and he doesn't look beyond the next meal. He holds no malice toward anyone and his worst enemy is half friendly to him, just some victim he borrowed five bucks from."

Gene Ahern collects portraits and etchings by Old Masters. He doesn't play golf, bridge, or badminton, and declares that his likes and dislikes are just like those of the average citizen.

Beauty "Queen" Is Suing British Peer

She Once Called Him 'Boodles', He Once Called Her 'Goddess'

NEW YORK.—On her way to London to remind a forgetful British peer that a year-old Lord Revolted, her toast the muffins he bought at the corner pastry shop for delightful little teas for two, Miss Angela Joyce, the "Miss England" of 1929, arrived in New York Sunday from Hollywood.

Protesting the heat encountered on her voyage here from the cinema capital aboard the steamship President Cleveland, Miss Joyce spoke gently of Rupert (Boodles) Baring, Lord Revolted, whose affections she prices at 1/2 million dollars in a suit for breach of promise she filed in the English courts April 9.

"He was a dear boy," she said. "I guess my soliloquies would let me say that. A dear, dear boy."

But she told of her romance with the 22-year-old Lord Revolted, heir to the $2,000,000 fortune of his family interest in Baring Brothers, international bankers. Her suit was filed following his marriage to Flora Fernor-Hesketh, daughter of Sir Thomas and Lady Hesketh, March 25.

"We had such jolly times and I didn't even know he was a lord. He called himself plain Philip Baring and we loved devotedly," she said. She called him "Robbin" and "Boodles" and he called her "goddess" and they are potted meats from the same tin and kissed each other's mustard-covered fingers at little al fresco affairs in her tiny apartment.

"We were," she said, "in a state of love's exuberance. Imagine my surprise when he married another woman."

"He is the best-looking man in the whole world, I suppose. Boodles thinks he has kissed me goodbye for the last time. Well, he hasn't. I'm one beauty queen who has brains, too."

Fashions of 1934 Revue at Saenger

Closes Wednesday, With
"I've Got Your Number" Thursday

William Powell and Betty Davis close their two day engagement of "Fashions of 1934" Wednesday night at the Saenger. This is a fashion extravaganza.
Six of Hollywood's ace comedians were cast for the rollicking comedy drama, "I've Got Your Number," which closes Thursday and Friday. The cast includes Joan Blondell, Pat O'Brien, Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins.
Not that "I've Got Your Number" is all comedy by any means. It also combines romance with melodramatic thrills, winding up with a smashing climax with a hard-fought battle between trouble men. The screen play reveals the human side of the daily events incident to the operation of the nation's gigantic telephone system.

'Coldest Woman' Makes Hot Denial

Called the "coldest woman in Hollywood," Elissa Landi, film beauty, above, suing for divorce, regards the title as an unjust stigma. She declares she chose a hermit's life because of her "high regard for the marriage contract," after her husband, John Cecil Lawrence, London attorney, refused to go to Hollywood to reside, fearing he would lapse into obscurity as "Mr. Elissa Landi." She charges mental cruelty in asking freedom from Lawrence.

Hope Implement Co. Production Loans Beats Texarkana Total 44 Million

Local Store of South Arkansas Implement Co. Is Winner
27 Million Advanced by Local Crop Loan Associations

Hope defeated Texarkana in a sales contest staged during May by the two stores of "South Arkansas Implement Co., Inc., according to E. H. Taylor, president.
"The live Hope crowd beat Texarkana again during May, which required a volume four times as great as that of the same month last year," Mr. Taylor said.
"W. L. Miller, manager of the Hope Store ably assisted by V. C. Johnson, assistant manager, and our many good farmer friends have certainly put that store on the map this year."
"You have a wonderful territory around Hope, and after canvassing it and contacting your wide-awake, progressive farmers, one can easily understand why Hope is such an outstanding business center."
"Use of the columns of your fine paper have materially aided us in putting our various lines before the trade, and we take this opportunity to thank you for your hearty co-operation."

As the Farm Credit Administration rounds out its first year's work, Production Credit Commissioner S. M. Garwood reports that the farmers' production credit associations, which were organized last winter and began to do business in volume in April, have handled about $44,500,000 of spring financing.
"The associations have advanced $27,300,000 of this amount," Mr. Garwood said, "and the balance of $17,200,000 has been allocated to the accounts of borrowers. Most of this balance goes to farmers who are getting their loans in a series of payments during the season, so they will have the money when they need it and meanwhile save on interest charges."
"Most of the loans made this spring have been for crop production," Mr. Garwood continued, "and while the spring seasonal demand for crop production loans has now passed its peak, the gradual increase in the size of loans indicates that farmers and stockmen are turning their attention to livestock loans and loans for general farming purposes."

"The extremely low cost of money this spring is very encouraging to new agricultural financing. The production credit associations have been able to reduce the interest rates on new loans to 5 per cent; and this factor is enabling many farmers to get loans who up until now have postponed the purchase of needed workstock, horses, equipment, machinery, repairs and improvements.
"Such loans must be secured by first liens on sufficient livestock or equipment, owned or purchased, to secure the loan adequately."

"Such a Good Laxative," Says Nurse
Writing from her home in Festus, Mo., Mrs. Anna LaPlante says: "I am a practical nurse and I recommend to some of my patients that they take Black-Draught, for it is such a good laxative. I took it for constipation, headache and a dull feeling that I had so much. A few doses of Black-Draught—and I felt just fine."
Because so many people know from having used it that Theodor's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, millions of packages of it are sold every year.

Perfect Elasticity throughout entire stocking. Flexible two-way stretch gives required length and fullness. Mystery weave retains shape at all times, shadowy sheerness and high twist. Permanently dull finish that stubbornly resists runs. Wears indefinitely. Designed to accentuate ankle slenderness.

Drought Relief Outlined

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt and a congressional delegation agreed on a $552-million-dollar program for the drought area of the West and Midwest Tuesday.

The sum, which may be increased, is by far the largest ever contemplated to offset a calamity. Several of the senators and representatives from 15 states commented that it had been less than four years since the Hoover administration was sternly opposing a proposal to vote $25,000,000 for direct aid to Southern states that were scarred by the 1930 drought.

Mr. Roosevelt had a plan already prepared to lay before the visitors from the capital. He outlined it. It was discussed briefly and the members went away apparently satisfied.

The president said that no hard and fast allocations were to be made out of the $552,000,000 and that he wished the appropriation to be flexible enough to take care of changes in needs.

It is expected he will send a message to congress asking for the drought fund within the next few days.

The president outlined the situation at his desk in the executive office.

Robinson Explains Situation
"Studies of conditions have progressed very rapidly through the Department of Agriculture and emergency relief organizations and will be continued," said Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, as he emerged.

"Before the end of the session a message recommending appropriations of approximately $500,000,000, to be used by existing machinery, in providing relief for stock and human beings will be sent to Congress by the president.

"It is thought likely a separate bill will be the best means of securing the legislation but it may be attached to the pending deficiency appropriation bill.

"The legislation will not require much time in either house, and prob-

LaFollette Bids G. O. P. Farewell

Vision of a new day in Wisconsin politics is seen here by Senator Robert M. LaFollette as he gestures to a farewell to the Republican party. With aid of farmer and labor groups, LaFollette and his backers formed a new Progressive party, at a convention in Fond du Lac, and the senator will run for re-election on that ticket this fall.

ably will be acted upon just before the end of the session so that intervening time may be used in obtaining further information and formulating plans. Conditions are constantly changing and no delay will result.

Tentative Program

The relief program tentatively outlined contemplated making sums as follows:

1. A $100,000,000 fund for purchasing additional beef and dairy cattle under the Jones-Connally act.

2. Approximately $100,000,000 for processing cattle and other products for relief purposes.

3. A cash outlay of $100,000,000 for work programs and emergency needs in the drought belt.

4. A livestock feed fund of $100,000,000.

5. A $50,000,000 fund for retiring submarginal lands and moving populations, particularly from sections such as some of those in North and South Dakota where crops are reported to be ruined.

6. A $50,000,000 Civilian Conservation Corps fund to provide employment for young men in the hard hit area.

7. A $25,000,000 wheat, corn and forage seed buying program.

Robinson said the appropriation would be in addition to the regular budget.

Credit Banks Surplus Up

William I. Meyers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, called $25,000 from the treasury to increase the capital and surplus of the 12 Federal Intermediate Credit banks.

This was the first call from the system's $40,000,000 revolving fund. Meyers said the other $15,000,000 will be ruled and distributed shortly.

He added this action was taken to give the banks the capital necessary to meet the increased demands for agricultural production and marketing credit.

COLLEGIATE YOUTH

mies?

So much has been said about girls having to "pet" to be popular that like disarmament it has come to be an accepted myth. If a girl accepts a "date" it is fair to assume that she is interested in the fellow. If she is interested in the fellow, do we have to draw a diagram? The college man and woman of today do not give a thought to the labelling of their acts.

Too Curious Elders

But the irrepressible Mrs. Weisen-

dunk is not content with such seeming equivocation. What about, she asks? What do the present young people think of it? The same thing they think of a bust of Caesar in a museum. They never give it a separate thought. They are too busy trying to live up to the rigid regulations which the authorities here lay down to make out a code. Maybe the older folks the older generation can get General Johnson to do something about it. Left to the young man and woman the moral code is a nebulous something which says that if you do this you'll end up there.

Naturally frankness is the order of the day. One could hardly expect to have shop windows lavishly flaunt brassieres, slips and other flora and fauna in a young generation's face and have them unaware of the facts. Young people of this campus do not blush any more because the advertisers in this country are the finest in the world. Books on sex are also prominently displayed in windows. Hence discussions on sex are healthy, frank and pleasant. The philosophy of our parents, "You can look at it but for goodness' sake don't name it," has been abandoned.

What about social awareness? Has the depression brought with it a realization that not all the hot air is concentrated in dirigibles? Yes. The college man and woman read daily the utterances of captains of industry.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When your head starts drooping about 3 in the afternoon, when you begin complaining of the heat, and when your work loses much of its usual interest, you are about ready for your vacation.

You may think you are doing better to stay home and work. Scientific studies show, however, that a vacation is an asset for the financial point of view, because you do more productive work afterward than you did before.

Vacation cost of an average family in the United States, with an income of from $2400 to $3000 a year, varies from $5.75, spent by a worker who stays at home and goes to the ball game every afternoon, to $18 a year, spent by families that take motor trips.

Most people think that the cheapest vacation they can get is to visit their relatives, but even that costs the average family $25.

Sometimes the cheapest vacation is the best, and the most expensive vacation may be a total loss from the point of view of producing rest and health.

An old-time doctor was asked by a young assistant how to run his office successfully. The doctor gave him two suggestions for routine treatment.

"First," he said, "ask your patients what they eat and order something else second, find out where they are going on their vacations and send them some place else."

The old doctor knew from common experience that most people do not pick their vacations properly for health and rest.

Any vacation should bring about a change from the routine of daily life, but rest is most important. In fact, hygienists have asserted that one of the greatest contributions of the Biblical code to hygiene was its emphasis on one day of rest in every seven.

With the coming of the machine age, the pressure has so greatly increased that a five-day week is likely in many industries, which means the regular disposal of two days each week for recreation.

Many organizations have become interested in proper disposal of this time from the point of view not only of recreation, but also of adult education.

Executives who work under high pressure with great responsibility are likely to take both winter and summer vacations. If we live twice as fast as we used to, we ought to rest twice as much and twice as often.

DROUTH ENDED

territory Wednesday.

The rains in dry sections ranged from gentle showers to downpours, the latter, ironically enough, falling in territory where crops already had perished.

Agriculture statisticians in northwestern states were almost unanimous in the opinion that showers now were too late to help wheat much, but would prove invaluable to preserving other crops.

Ohio had rains and expected more to relieve a water shortage in eastern and southern portions of the state. N. W. Baker, federal crop representative, said fear of irreparable damage to crops was "hysteria" and that a fair shower once a week from now on would bring many crops through in fair shape.

Maine, just beginning to feel the drought, has suffered considerable loss to gardens, pasture land and the hay crop, with the apple yield cut in half by sub-normal temperatures last winter. The situation there was said to require abundant moisture within three days.

Minnesota and upper Michigan did not look for rain, but lower temperatures were indicated. Showers were announced as probable in the Dakotas and were to spread eastward across the dry, parched wheat country.

Relief measures were placed before congress by President Roosevelt who recommended a $525,000,000 drought relief program.

Other more fortunate sections also reported relief efforts. Arkansas, recipient of relief from South Dakota in the disastrous drought which ravaged the southern state in 1930, offered to repay a part of its debt by shipping three carloads of rice, with southern recipes, to the northern state.

Show me a college student with a lugubrious countenance and I'll show you a senior. It is not possible for one to spend four years at college, to notice the hard working students in restaurants, shops and private homes, to observe the threadbare clothes, the serious faces, without realizing that the land has suffered a drought.

Faced with a blank future, the dull average student has only a flickering hope to carry him forward.

NEW LAXATIVE DOES 6 THINGS
Doctors believe a good laxative should have the six features which Feen-a-mint the chewing gum laxative possesses. 1. So delicious to take that you will take it when you need it. 2. A full, prompt, complete, action that does not interfere with daily duties. 3. Non-habit forming. 4. Safe for even the delicate digestive organs of children. 5. No rich element to upset stomach, or diet, or to go stale. 6. A more natural action because chewing distributes the laxative ingredients more uniformly into the intestines. That delicious Feen-a-mint does these things is proven because doctors themselves regularly prescribe the laxative ingredients which is in Feen-a-mint. "Delay" is dangerous—chew Feen-a-mint for constipation. 15c and 25c at drugstores.
